Webster's New International Dictionary of the English Language Thomas A. Knott, Paul W. Charhart William Allan Neilson

From Wikipedia: "In 1934, the New International Dictionary was revised and expanded for a second edition, which is popularly known as "Webster's Second" or W2, although it was not published under that title. It was edited by William Allan Neilson and Thomas A. Knott. It contained 3350 pages and sold for $39.50. Some versions added a 400-page supplement called "A Reference History of the World," which provided chronologies "from earliest times to the present". The editors claimed over 600,000 entries, more than any other dictionary at that time, but that number included many proper names and newly added lists of undefined "combination words". Multiple definitions of words are listed in chronological order, with the oldest, and often obsolete, usages listed first. For example, the first definition of starve includes dying of exposure to the elements as well as from lack of food."
