The Locomotive Building Works (Building Steam in the UK Book 1) Maurice S. Davis

This is the first volume in a set of three:

- Volume 1: The Railway Works, a review of UK workshop practice and equipment, with a supplement that identifies the railway companies that built steam and lists their Locomotive Superintendents/Chief Mechanical Engineers.
- Volume 2: A catalogue of the locomotive building activities of railway operating companies since 1825, organised by 1923 Grouping and also by region, post-Nationalisation, up until 1960.
- Volume 3: A catalogue of the locomotive building activities of independent contractors who built, surprisingly perhaps, more locomotives than all of the railway companies combined.

Each volume is illustrated with the author's own unique watercolour site-plans and diagrams, along with photographs showing workshop buildings and equipment, and narrative descriptions of notable innovations and practices are given.
